Managing Intellectual Property Magazine Includes Brinks Gilson & Lione Michigan Attorneys as IP Stars

Published By Managing Intellectual Property May 31, 2017

Ann Arbor, Mich. - Managing Intellectual Property magazine (MIP) named eleven attorneys from Brinks Gilson & Lione, one of the largest intellectual property law firms in the U.S., to its annual list of IP Stars. Three of the attorneys are from the Ann Arbor office of Brinks, including Steven L. Oberholtzer, managing shareholder of the Ann Arbor office. Oberholtzer was named a Patent Star and Trademark Star. Ann Arbor shareholder Lawrence G. (L.G.) Almeda and Ann Arbor associate attorney Josh Ney, Ph.D. were recognized as Patent Stars.

MIP also recognized Brinks for its work in the areas of Copyright, Patent Contentious, Patent Prosecution, and Trademark Prosecution.

To create the annual IP Stars firm rankings and list of leading IP practitioners, Managing Intellectual Property researchers each year obtain information from law firms and their clients through surveys and interviews. More information can be found at www.ipstars.com.
